

TIPS FOR MELANCHOLIC GROWN-UPS

With a Sanguine Child...

1. Limit your words. Details are important to you, but a Sanguine child will tune them (and you) out.
2. Lean in to their optimism. They can find the bright side of almost anything. When you find yourself dwelling on bad or sad news, let them cheer you up.
3. Celebrate your differences. Their wiring is the opposite of yours. When this causes tension, choose to be grateful for what you can learn from each other.
4. Give them outlets for their energy. Your need for space and silence is likely to be overwhelmed by their volume, restlessness, and desire for constant company. Try to proactively solve this problem by teaching them that they can be loud outside or that you like hugs before bedtime.

With a Choleric Child...

1. Don't take it personally. Their tendency to argue and challenge is not a reflection on you, your intelligence, or your competency.
2. Give them the space and freedom to make decisions. Choleric children insist on doing things “their way,” which will sometimes conflict with “the right way” in your opinion. When the stakes are low, let them give it a try.
3. Provide opportunities for them to have some control. Look for occasions when you can (safely) let them be in charge. But be forewarned: You may have to keep your perfectionism in check.
4. Keep communication short and to the point. Skip the supporting details unless they push you to prove your point. The shorter, the better.

With a Melancholic Child...

1. Don't transfer your fear and worry onto them. Even though you share the same wiring, you have very different life experiences. Allow them to make up their own mind rather than inheriting your views, fears, and worries.
2. Use criticism and correction gently. You know the toll that harsh words can take on a blue child who is already so hard on themselves. Speak gently.
3. Make room for mistakes. Disconnect your affection from their achievement so it is not implied that they are unworthy or unloved when they make mistakes.
4. Prepare them; don't scare them. Teach them how to cope with (rather than be controlled by) anxious thoughts. Leverage their natural problem-solving skills with questions like, “What’s your Plan B?” and, “What could you do differently next time?”

With a Phlegmatic Child...

1. Be kind in your criticism. Aim to be direct, yet gentle. Harsh or constant criticism will cause a green child to withdraw and give up.
2. Leave out unnecessary details. A Phlegmatic child can quickly get overwhelmed by too many details. Say only what’s necessary to get your point across.
3. Don't nag or lecture. Phlegmatics do not aim for or expect perfection like you do. Nagging or lecturing will not change this; it will only trigger resentment.
4. Watch your moods. To an agreeable green child, your tendency toward moodiness can feel controlling as they constantly adjust to your emotional state, and they will start to shut down.

TIPS FOR PHLEGMATIC GROWN-UPS

With a Sanguine Child...

1. State expectations clearly so they know what is required. If you want something done a certain way, say so. Otherwise, a Sanguine is likely to get creative (or distracted).
2. Show enthusiasm with your body language. Even if it feels forced or unnatural to you, try to match their emotion with an extra big smile, an audible laugh, or maybe even jazz hands once in a while.
3. Verbalize your affection and love. Don't just think it, say it! Anytime you feel warmly toward a Sanguine child, speak up. They long to hear your words of affirmation.
4. Try to appreciate and find joy in their energy. When they're ready for the next adventure and you're ready for a nap, try to be delighted (rather than overwhelmed) by their zest for life.

With a Choleric Child...

1. Try to stay calm. In the face of a Choleric's power, control, and energy, lean in to your natural ability to stay calm in the midst of chaos.
2. Advocate for yourself and your ideas. It won't occur to a Choleric child to ask for your opinion or consider your feelings.
3. Try not to let their strong will overwhelm you. Choleric children crave debate, competition, and challenge. So, you may have to work hard to find the harmony and lack of stress you need.
4. Stay consistent with rules, discipline, and punishment. Choleric children will push the boundaries in search of safety and structure. Backing down or letting things slide will only make them push harder.

With a Melancholic Child...

1. Avoid becoming “emotional Velcro.” You are wired to accommodate and adjust to others’ moods, but guard against being dragged up and down too much by a Melancholic’s emotions.
2. Pay attention to the details. You may feel overwhelmed or paralyzed by too many details, but a Melancholic child will feel prepared and empowered.
3. Model patience and contentment. Your wiring can help a blue child learn how to be patient with themselves and content with the world, even when things aren’t perfect.
4. Speak up when they shut down. When they isolate or slip into silence, fight your urge to ignore the situation and hope it goes away. It’s your job as the grown-up to dig deep and stay engaged until they are back on track.

With a Phlegmatic Child...

1. Lead the way in uncomfortable conversations. You are both wired to avoid conflict and confrontation. Even though it doesn’t come naturally, as the grown-up, you’re responsible for speaking up first when there’s an issue to be addressed.
2. Embrace the extra work. Supporting a child’s interests will likely mean extra work for you. You may have to give them rides, manage schedules and gear, or even be their coach. Try to rise to the occasion when required.
3. Create structure... and stick to it. Establishing routines will help you create the chaos-free environment a green child craves without ongoing effort needed from you.
4. Make sure your feedback is consistent. You know firsthand how much a green child wants to avoid disappointing anyone. Make sure you’re on the same page as their other parent, teacher(s), or coach(es) to avoid giving them conflicting information and putting them in a no-win situation.

TIPS FOR CHOLERIC GROWN-UPS

With a Sanguine Child...

1. Resist the urge to multitask. A Sanguine child's stories can be wordy. You may be tempted to knock out a task or two while you (half-heartedly) listen, but they deeply crave your undivided attention and eye contact.
2. Let them make their own decisions. They'll show off their sparkle if you let them choose things for themselves.
3. Tone down your volume. The most effective way to get them to moderate their volume is to moderate yours.
4. Relax and have fun (at least try to). Think of this as an item on your to-do list. It may not feel productive at the time, but it will have a huge relational payoff.

With a Choleric Child...

1. Prepare for battle. It might feel like a daily fight to prove who is the adult. Though you'll be inclined to power up, instead pause. Then show curiosity and interest. It will be more effective.
2. Try not to pull rank. You know how it feels when your opinion isn't considered. Seek their input whenever possible. Even when it won't ultimately change your decision, allow them to be part of the discussion.
3. Redirect toward solutions. Since you're both skilled debaters, discussions may drag way past the point of being productive. Steer toward resolution to avoid getting stuck in endless arguments.
4. Give them opportunities to choose and make decisions. Sure, you could (and let's be honest, would be happy to) make every decision. That makes it an even more meaningful gift when you let a Choleric child decide.

With a Melancholic Child...

1. Go out of your way to encourage them. A blue child wants to please you and will get easily discouraged if they think they're falling short. Though it may not come naturally, compliment and praise them effusively.
2. Be patient. You may feel like their slower pace is unproductive, but remember, they are wired for planning, problem-solving, and perfection. While you're aiming for done, they are aiming for excellence.
3. Don't add fuel to the fire. Melancholic children are already so hard on themselves. When they don't meet your expectations, remember that they are more upset about it than you are.
4. See their sensitivity as a strength. They are attuned to emotion; you are intolerant of emotion. Be careful not to criticize one of their greatest strengths just because you can't relate.

With a Phlegmatic Child...

1. Dial down your intensity and speed. A Phlegmatic child will never match your sense of urgency. They are wired to move slower. Whenever possible, defer to their pace.
2. Motivate their way, not yours. A Phlegmatic child is more motivated by support and encouragement than threats and challenges.
3. Solicit their opinions and ideas. In the face of your decisiveness, a Phlegmatic child will not proactively speak up—especially if they disagree with you. Try to pause and ask for their thoughts.
4. Help them discover their interests. If you want to get a Phlegmatic child moving, find what interests them. (It's often just one or two things.)

TIPS FOR SANGUINE GROWN-UPS

With a Sanguine Child...

1. Be an active listener. When they're telling a story, give them the eye contact and undivided attention you crave. And do your best not to interrupt or add your own commentary.
2. Share the stage. Be intentional about creating opportunities for them to outshine you. Let them lead the class discussion or tell the funny story from your last vacation.
3. Check the facts. Before getting too carried away by emotion or enthusiasm, help each other slow down and consider: What are the facts of this situation? Is this wise? Is it safe?
4. Establish systems. You won't be able to rely on them to remember their rehearsal schedule or where they set down the car keys. So do your best to establish organizational systems to keep you both on track.

With a Choleric Child...

1. Tone down your enthusiasm. Choleric children are energetic and adventurous like you, but even they will not want to match your energy level most of the time.
2. Not everything needs to be fun. Some of what you would call "fun," they would call "foolish." Choleric children do not want to look stupid or play games they cannot win.
3. Give facts. Choleric children are rarely persuaded with emotional arguments like, "It might hurt her feelings if you don't go." Logic is your strongest weapon.
4. Use fewer words. Choleric children stop listening the minute they get the gist of what you're saying. If you want them to hear you, get to the point quickly.

With a Melancholic Child...

1. Avoid oversharing or calling attention to them. A blue child does not want to be the topic of your story or punchline of your joke unless they have given you permission.
2. Focus on facts and details. Precision and accuracy are important to Melancholics. They do not want to be unprepared or late, so give them the facts and keep an eye on the time.
3. Make space for their feelings. Your naturally sunny attitude can make you almost allergic to others' unpleasant emotions, but a blue child doesn't want to be cheered up instantly. They crave empathy, not optimism.
4. Avoid judging a book by its cover. A Melancholic child may be having a great time even if they aren't smiling or bubbling with enthusiasm. They are wired to be serious or reserved, which means fun looks different on their face than yours.

With a Phlegmatic Child...

1. Be a cheerleader. You are wired to be an inspiring motivator. Leverage that strength when a Phlegmatic child could use a nudge to speak up or join in.
2. Avoid poking fun. Be careful that your desire for humor and fun doesn't come at the expense of a green child who already tends to struggle with doubt and self-worth.
3. Let them recharge. Your endless need for fun and people can exhaust a Phlegmatic child. Pay attention to nonverbal cues that suggest they've had enough. Or better yet, ask them if they need a break.
4. Stay on time and on task. Both yellows and greens tend to lose track of time and get distracted from goals. As the grown-up, try your best to keep things on track.
